When it was rumored that the Trouge was about to lake the irin, the general impression was the enterprise. Company could neither speak or ungersead the Spanish language, and the Unbass could not understand English. The result, however, proved the contrary—the musical and conic talent of the Trouge being sufficient form together and entertain the largest and most flashionable audience in Havana, although the Italian Opera sade Chirin's Grand Circue were in their midst. Their performances met with such marks of approbation that they were so licited to visit the neighboring cities. After performing in Havana, Matanzas, Cardenas, and other cities in the north of the Island, with unpercalled success, they now return to the sceness of their former triumphs, conscious that the patronage so freely ovented to them in former days will still be awarded them.

Morning Post, writing on the 14th inst., says:

Vigorous efforts are buing made by Gen. de Lamoriciere to bring the material resources of the Military Department to a degree of efficiency more on a par with the exigencies of the Papal Government than they have heretofore been. Twenty-five thousand men will form the strength of the Pontificial standing army. The artillery is to be immediately carried to a strength of eight batteries, and the General has requested that a spot of ground in the Campagna, not too far from Rome, may be immediately placed at his disposition for the peacite of gunnery. Four hundred houses and a like number of military saddles for the re-establishment of a dragoon regiment, are also among the items demanded as being of the greatest urgency. In fact, the energy displayed by the Commander-in-Chief shows that he is the man to reorganize the Papal sarmy, if that heterogeneous body is really capable of being reduced to discipline and efficiency; but the extent and rapidity of the General's demands for men, money, and material, have set the War Office in a whird, and given unusual importance to that hitherto neglected branch of the public administration. Gen. de Goven does everything in his power to assist Gen. de Lamoriciere in his great undertaking. Affairs will be much facilitated by a great portion of the French warfike material, and stores being transferred to the Government of His Holiness at a moderate price on the departure of the army of occupation from Rome. This event, which it was at first departure of the army of occupation from Rome. This event, which it was at first thought would take six months to effect, will probably occur at an earlier period.

The ILL-Effects of Rowing.— Oarsmen should indulge in their favorite sport in moderation, as a writer in the London Times says "That almost all young men who have been at Oxford and Cambridge, especially those who have meddled much in boat-races, have as a rule diseased blood vessels, arteries, or veins, and very many of them diseased and dilated hearts—all brought on by the strain and undue excitement (remora we, the doctors, call it,) of the circulation induced by pulling at boat-races. In fact, the matter is now well recognized both at insurance offices and in the administration of chloroform among the upper classes, where diseased heart is to be avoided. It would seem the delicate fibres of the hearts of the boys and lads sent to Oxford at once give way before this pressure or remora."

Discovery of Antiquasian Regios.—The Galt (Canada) Reporter gives an account of some Indian pottery, of a very primeval description, which was discovered on the farm belonging to Mr. George Hong, near Galt. The field is on the banks of the Grand River, and being played left week for the first and, being plowed last week for the first time, a rude bowl or basin was turned up. A beautiful flint was also found on the same spot, and decayed bones of deer and other animals. The Reporter adds that the field's around are full of such antiquarian relics.

A Wonan's CrinoLine Saves Her Neck.

Not long ago, at a village in Belgium, a young lady in full dress was seen walking on the roof of a house. Inquiry developed the fact that she was in a fit of delirium, resulting from a fever, and that she had risen from her sick bed, dressed herself and gone by a window to the roof. All efforts to persuade her to come down by the way she had ascended proving fruitless, two slaters were sent to bring her down, but, before they reached her, she leaped off. Strange to say, she was but little injured by the fall, as her crinoline had swelled out, and diminished the velocity of her descent.

A Parlsian Lorette's Method of Ensuaring Extraordinary Attempt of a Laborer to Destroy Himself.

One of the most extraordinary attempts at suicide we have ever heard of is thus recorded by the State of The Constitutional Convention.

The loreste distinguishes a foreigner at a glance, and applies to him the particular device suited to the circumstances, choosing from the inexhaustible catalogue of her own and her companions' experience. One of the commonest and most successful plans to raise the wind is as follows: The loresta dons her elegant robe, hat and shawl, descends to the street, and seats herself in an open cabriolet, at a neighboring remise, the price of which is at a neighboring remise, the price of which two and a half france the hour, including fiv at a neighboring remise, the price of which is two and a half france the hold, including five suis gratuity to the driver, who, in this instance, is perfectly acquainted with his customer. To insure a profitable result to the enterprise, it is indispensable that the weather should be fine. It is between four and five o'clock, P. M., as the adventuress enters the carriage and orders the coachinant to drive slowly along the boulevards, or up the Champs Elyaees. At this time in the afternoon the fashionable avanues are sure to be thronged with idlers and strangers.

The elegant toilet and handsome features of the lorette, (for these women are either really beautiful, or thoroughly understand the art of making themselves appear attractive,) as she leans back, with carefully studied negligent grace, in the vehicle, are certain to draw upon her the gase of passers-by. "Madame" is somewhat fastidious in making a selection, but her judgment is unerring. The foreign-looking gentleman, suntering down the boulevard from the opposite direction, is a predestined victim. The lorette has made her choice. As the foreign gentleman nears her, swinging his cane and scanning the passing equipages, she catches his eye, as it rests momentarily upon her, smiles amica the passing outpages, she catches his eye, as it rests momentarily upon her, smiles amicably, so as to display two rows of dazzling teeth, nods, and turns away her head, with a low-toned order to the coachman to accidentally approach nearer the pavement. Mean time, the foreign gentleman, racking his brain to remember where he might have made th lady's acquaintance, hurriedly retraces his steps to obtain a better view of her features, his object being happily favored by the slow pade of the cabriolet and its proximity to the curbstone. Madame again catches his eye, and again smiles. Thus encouraged, the stranger, who is now satisfied that he never saw her before, is confident that she mistakes him for another, and thinks the procedurate. him for another, and thinks the opportunity for an adventure too tempting to be lost takes off his hat, smiles in return, and beckons takes off his hat, smiles in return, and beckons to the driver to stop.

"I see you have half forgotten me," says Madame, with an arch look of reproach. "We danced together, the other evening, at the Countess de T's."

"To be sure we did!" says the other, who don't know the Countess de T. from the Queen of the Sandwich Islands, but inwardly argues that a lady who nods to him in the street, on so slender a basis as a ball-room acquaintance, must merely wish to hint a flattering interest in him. "How stupid—how unpardonably remise in me not to have recognized you immediately i"

"I forgive you," returns the lady, coquettishly, "on condition that you take a ride with me to the "Bois."

The delighted stranger, congratulating with me to the "Bois."

The delighted stranger, congratulating himself on the fancied error to which he is indebted for this charming rencounter, seats himself, with abacrity, beside the pseudo countess or baroness, and away they are driven for a round in the wood and a tour of the miniature lake. The stranger thinks himself blessed, of course, yields to the delusive joy of the hour, and in a very brief time becomes the victim of this artful woman.

Morrissey thinks Sayers to be the greatest little man he ever saw, and the hardest hitter in the world. He thinks that Sayers would have won the late fight in ten minutes later if it had not been stopped; he further declares that the police were brought into the ring by one of Heenan's American friends, who insisted that they should stop the fight. Morrissey further says, that he did not, in any way, by word or deed, interfere with the progress of the battle; and as to his cutting the ropes, it is all bosh, and he will back up this statement by betting $100 to $10 that no man on earth saw him cut the ropes; but that he did see the stakes after they were pulled up. He says he thinks that Sayers and Heenan will fight again, and that in his judgment the American champion will be udgment the American defeated, and that he will back up this opin-ion with his money.

DESPERATE ATTEMPT OF A PRISONER TO Es-NAPE.—On Monday afternoon a sheriff was traveling with a prisoner over the Buffalo, New York and Eric road; between two stations, while the train was running at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, the latter sprang from his seat, ran to the rear platform of the car and jumped from the train. He truck upon his feet, then turned over endwise two or three times, and lay as if dead upon the road. As soon as the train could be stopped the man was picked up, and for a long time remained insensible, and it was not certain that he would not die. tions, while the train was running at the rate

A FRENCH JEST .- There is a clever thing in the Paris Charivari. A French soldier is represented crossing the frontier into Savoy without taking any notice of a man in a po ter's lodge, who calls out lustily to ask him where he is going. The free and easy pro-ceeding of the soldier is described as Entrant seeding of the soldier is described as Entrant sans s addresser as Suisse! English readers may require to be informed that Suisse is a synonym for a hall porter, because that office was formerly filled by Swiss people more than any other. In the courtyard of many houses in Paris you see written up to this day, "Parlez au Suisse."

AN ANECDOTE OF PATRICK HENRY .- When An ANGCOOTE OF PATRICK HERRY.—When Patrick Henry was an old man, the late Dr. Rice, of Virginia, took his young son to see him, in hopes that some word would fall from the lips of the eloquent old man that would leave a lasting impression upon the heart of the youth. Henry gazed into the face of the boy and said, "Young man, remember that every man is the maker of his own fortunes and character." In that single sentence was more truth, more sense and more sound philosophy than in all theories of Social Reformers.

LEFT-HANDED LOCOMOTIVES.—Mr. Dyer Williams, Locomotive Superintendent of the Central Railroad at Syracuse, (N. Y.) informs the Railroad Review, that according to his experience, nine out of ten of the crank-axles that break give way at the left hand side. At first, that appeared entirely accidental, but a continuance of the phenomenon, after special effort had been made to adjust both sides of the engine alike, naturally led to the belief that there was a discoverable cause. Has this experience occurred in any other shop? LEFT-HANDED LOCOMOTIVES .- Mr. Dye

MODEL OF SOLOMON'S TEMPLE.—A model of Solomon's Temple is on exhibition in Phila-delphia. The size of the model enables the delphia. The size of the model enables the visitor to form a very good idea of the grand original. It is in the proportion to the latter of one fact to twenty-one, thirty-five by twenty-four feet in length and breath, and fifteen feet high. Surrounding the different courts there are six hundred figures arrayed in Jewish costume, the whole presenting a spectacle well calculated to carry the mind back to the days of God's chosen people as they dwelt in the land of promise nearly three thousand years ago.

Extraordinary Attempt of a Laborer to Destroy Himself.

One of the most extraordinary attempts at suicide we have ever heard of is thus recorded by the Sheffield Tielegraph. A man named James Axon, aged forty-five years, who described himself as a laborer, has been taken into custody for attempting to hang bimself. It appears that the man went to the cemetery gates and asked permission to go into the grounds to see the grave of his mother, but as he was not in a fit state to be allowed there the policeman on duty refused him admission, whereupon he threatened to axenge himself by committing saicide.

The man went to some lads who were playing a short distance off, and told them he was going to hang himself, if he could only find a likely spot for the job. A fine strong tree, with a good shout bough, here rewarded their research, and the man very methodically proceeded to lie his handkerchief and a cord together, and attached them to the branches above. Previous to taking his final leave of them he said that he should like to ease his mind, so that be would have nothing to think of, and to reward them for their trouble he would make his will, and divide his little stock among them.

He then produced six or seven peunyworth of copper, and, to the delight of the lads, shared it among tham, and in order to carry out his plans more effectually, he told the senior of the party not to cut him down tilh he whistled. The lad promised to do so, and Axon attached the cord to his neck and flung himself into the air. He had no sooner done this than blood gashed from his nose and mouth, and without waiting for the signal, the lad cut the rope, and the would-be suicide came sprawling to the earth. His first words were a sound black-guarding to the boys around him, and an indignant remonstrance to the eldest of them for not waiting as he had promised, adding at the finish, as a sort of balin to the boy's feelings, "It told thee to wait till I whistied, my lad. "Yes," says the lad, "but you didn't whistle, and din't look like i sidn't whistic, and didn't look like it; a very sensible remark, and in order to prevent any arther attempt, the boy gave information to a policeman who happened to be close by The man was taken into custody, and locked up at the town-hail, where he made a second attempt to kill himself by hanging himself with a towel. In this he failed.

SECRET INFORMERS AT WARHINGTON .- Th Washington correspondents say that the Government has evidence of an important char acter as to the case of the slaver Wanderer, not only tending to convict the officers and owners of the schooner, but also implicating some prominent citizens of the South. The story is that a man named Bacon, employer some time since in the Land Office, informed the President and Attorney General that be and information of this character, and desire to be engaged in secret service as to the Wanderer affair. His representations were not credited, however, the matter passed by and he was afterward dismissed. The Government then found that his stories were cor coborated, and that his intimation of impor-tant evidence in reserve was confirmed, and accordingly sought him out and secured hi accordingly sought him out and secured his presence as a witness at the trial of suits now pending in this matter. If the story is true, Mr. Black was as unfortunate as his companion, Secretary Floyd was, in neglecting the etter exposing John Brown's project in advance. It is reported that Bacon, the informant in the present case, was the author of the anonymous letter to Mr. Sickles, which aroused his suspicions against Mr. Key.

A VENERABLE VIRGINIA COUPLE.-Ther A VENERABLE VIRGISIA COUPLE.—There es des in Virginia, near the Ohio line, a hale and hearty couple—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Church—who have attained the remarkably ripe old age of 110 and 108 years respectively. The residence of this aged couple is on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, some forty miles from Wheeling. He is known along the read as "Old Hundred," and the along the road as "Old Hundred," and the care, by special arrangement, stop before his door, two miles from any station, if there be passengers ticketed for "Old Hundred." He was a British soldier in the Revolution, and being taken prisance declined when he being taken prisoner, declined exchange and remained in the country. He is still in re-markable possession of all his bodily powers except that his sight is dim. His good dame has not even this mark of age, being able t read comfortably without glasses, couple were visited by the editor sionists, on Friday, and the interview ap-

PROSPECTS OF THE PAPAL ARMY .- General PROSPECTS OF THE PAPAL ARMY.—General Lamericiere's letters from Rome continue to speak favorably of the state and prospects of the Pontifical army. It is said he is of opinion that the gendarmery, who form a corps of our thousand men, are pretty nearly, if not fully equal to the French troops of the same arm. The officers of the artillery are also spoken of highly, and the line will, in a short time, with a little drill and discipline, their pay punctually given to them, their food good and sufficient, and their comfort generally cared for, turn out as efficient as any good and sunceent, and their counter gen-erally cared for, turn out as efficient as any other troops. With respect to the professed rioters, the General ways that before he ar-rived at Rome they could be had for thirty sous a head; since his arrival the prices has

As Extensive Gang ov Counterspetters Discovers.—The clue to an extensive, gang of counterfeiters was discovered by the recent arrest in Elmira, N. Y., of two of the gang. Two others, named G. B. Graham and D. N. Finch, have been arrested in New York. They have dealt principally in counterfeitens on the Farmers' and Manufacturers' Bank of Poughkeepsie, which were so well executed as to deceive even the bankers. They have also "shoved" counterfeit ones on the Chemung River Bank, and bogus half-dollars, and spurious quarter-eagles. About three thousand do'lars of counterfeit money was passed before the men were arrested. Both are now in jail in Elmira swaiting their trials. Startling developments are promised: AN EXTENSIVE GANG OF COUNTERPRITERS trials. Startling developments are promised; but the facts are for the present withheld, as it is alleged that prominent railroad and banking men are implicated.

NEW KIND OF PLAYING CARDS .- A French New Kind of Playing Cards.—A French paper manufacturer has invented a new pack of playing cards. Each card represents some remarkable fact connected with the history of Napoleon I or Napoleon III. All the figures are of the same period, the execution and brilliancy of the colors. The pack of cards is called "Jartes de l'Ere Imperials." In place of kings there are four emperors, including the Empress Mother. In place of knays, four Bonapartes, brothers of Napoleon I. For aces there are four imperials, Martinique, where the Empress Josephine was tinique, where the Empress Josephine was born, the islands of St, Crolx, Elba and St. Helena.

Municipal Election.

Archison, R. T., May 8.—The city election came off yesterday, resulting in the complete triumph of the Democracy. Fairchild was elected Mayor; Weightman, Recorder; Adams, Treasurer; DeKeefe, Rogister; and Howell, Engineer. Inconsistent Christianity.—Jeremy Taylor said in one of his sermons: "If a man prays all day, and at night is intemperate; if he spends his time in reading, and his recreation is sinful; if he studies religion, and practices self-interest; if he leaves his awearing, and yet retains his pride; if he becomes chaste, said yet remains preview and imperious, this man is not changed from the state of sin into the first stage of grace; he does at no hand belong to God; he hath suffered himself to be careful from each the said to be a served from one sin, and tempted from another by interest, and left a third by reason of his inclination; and a fourth for shame or for want of opportunity. From Washington.

A careful examination of the condition of the Treasury, shows that there will be a deficit of at least $8,000,000 at the close of the fiscal year on the 30th of June, on the basis of Secretary Cobb's receipts, which must be supplied either from a loan or Treasury notes. Owing to some Democrats declining to vote, the committee repeatedly found itself without a quorum although it appeared by

SEWING MACHINE!

PRINCIPAL OFFICE. NO. 77 W. FOURTH-STREET, PIKE'S OPERA HOUSE,

CINCINNATI WE OFFER TO THE PUBLIC THE Wheeler a Wilson Seering Marhine, with important introvements, and to meet the demand for a good, low-priced Family Machine, have introduced a NEW STYLE, werking upon the same principle, and making the same stitch, though not so highly finished, at FIFTY-FIVE DULLARS.

The elegance, speed, noiselessness and simplicity of the Machine, the hearty and strength of sitch, being attach on some sizes, impossible to ravel, and leaving no chain or ridge on the under side, the economy of thread and adaptability to the thickest or thinnest fabrics, has reinfered this the most successful and popular Family Sawing Machine now made.

Baltimore, May 8.—Delegates to the Constitutional Convention, to assemble to-morrow, are arriving in considerable numbers, and the hotels are filling up. The Old Presbyterian Church Building, recently bought by the Government for a Court-house, has been finely fitted up for the accommodation of the Convention. A full length portrait of Washington has been placed behind the President's chair, and the interior of the building is draped with flags.

There is considerable speculation as to the course to be pursued. A meeting was called for to-night of the friends of Mr. Botts, but for some reason it did not take place.

The old church is the same in which Martin Van Buren was nominated for the Presidency. Delegates are here from twenty-six States. Every State and Territory except Oregon are expected to be represented.

Among the arrivals are Messrs. Leelie Goombs, Bell, Parson Brownlow, Goggin, and other distinguished politicians.

Several delegations have their headquarters at Barnum's Hotel.

The New York delegation voted unsumously to have no platform but the Union, Gonst tution, and enforcement of the laws. An informal ballot of the delegates as an expression of their preference for the President, resulted as follows: Gen. Sam. Houston, 27, Judge McLean, 2; Gen. Wool, 2; Gen. Scott, 1, John Bell, 2.

BALTIMORE, May 8.—The Convention bids fair to be a full one. Messrs. Houston and Bell are the leading candidates, between whom there is likely to be a warm contest. Tennessee particularly resists Mr. Houston. A majority of the New York delegates are for him. Mr. McLean does not manifest much strength. He would be stronger and perhaps nominated but for the belief that he would be rejected at Chicago, and by his declention the party left without a candidate.

Messus, Everett, Fuller and Hunt are most unamed for the Vice-Presidency.

There is a general disposition to get along without a platform. The New York delegation hold a cancus to-night to fill vacancies and consult. SEWING, EMBROIDERIES, SAD-Twist, eedles and Spool Cotton. without a platform. The New York delegation hold a caucus to-night to fill vacancies and consult.

The Washington correspondent of the Tribuse, referring to the Union Convention, says. The Georgia delegation to the Baltimore Union Convention are reported in favor of Mr. Crittenden as a candidate, instead of Mr. Houston, as formerly stated.

"Judge Nelson, of the Supreme Bench, is spoken of in high quarters, as the possible nominee of the Un on Convention, in the hope that he will be adopted by the Richmond and Baltimore Conventions."

Baltimore Conventions.

Baltimore The Edity presents an animated appearance; many strangers are in town, and the headquarters of the delegates are thronged. There is a great rush for tickets of admission.

Delegates from every State except Oregon and South Garolins have reported themselves. Some in advance of their arrival, expecting to reach here to-day. The hall presents a ray appearance. The galleries are festooned with red, white and blue. The best gallery is appropriated to the ladies.

By noon the galleries were densely packed, and much enthusiasm was manifested as the delegations appeared and occupied the seats allotted to them. Various distinguished men were warmly applauded from the galleries.

At noon the Convention was called to order by John J. Crittenden, whose appearance was greeted with loud and prolonged cheering.

Washington, May 8.—The Japanese are expected at Hampton Roads about the 12th instant. Orders were dispatched by the mail atcamer Isabel to the commander of the flagship Roanoke, with a view to intercept her at Key West, instructing him to put into Hampton Roads with his distinguished guests, instead of proceeding at once to Sandy Hook. If this plan is successful, the Embassy should reach Washington by the 14th instant.

Mr. Swift, of New Bedford, was examined to day, before the Covode Committee, concerning the live-oak contracts he obtained from the Navy Department. It was proved that while other contractors were required to farnish half the timber they contracted for within sixteen days, no such restriction was imposed on him, and the effect of that limitation was to give him additional contracts through the failure of others to meet its rigid enforcement.
